Description: Part of the TCDownload.com site content, TCDir is a kind of "CD repository" for you to download over 4,000 freeware, shareware, demo, trial, and full version programs.Q: Add Menu Group to Calendar in c# I want to make a menu group in my application that when I click on it, the Calendar opens. When I click on a "Day" item on my menu group, the following code has to be called: public void calender_SelectionChanged(object sender, SelectionChangedEventArgs e) { calender.SelectionChanged += calender_SelectionChanged; int selected = calender.SelectedDate.DayOfWeek; calender.Visible = true; calender.CalendarView = CalendarView.SingleDay; calender.FirstDayOfWeek = selected; calender.Visible = true; calender.NavigationMode = CalendarNavigationMode.MonthView; this.ShowView(new DateTime(2014, 04, 10)); calender.Focus(); calender.SelectionChanged -= calender_SelectionChanged; calender.Focus(); calender.SelectionChanged += calender_SelectionChanged; } So I call the following code every time the Calendar is displayed (by clicking on a menu item). My problem is that when the calendar is opened and then closed, it returns to the default calendar view. I know that I have to add something to the calender.SelectionChanged = calender_SelectionChanged, but I don't know exactly what to do. A: I think it will work when you put this code after calender.Visible = true; if (calender.IsCalendarOpen) calender.CalendarView = CalendarView.SingleDay; Association of African Lions and Indri with the local people in the Nilgiri Biosphere Reserve (India) Indri was the name for the Nilgiri Biosphere Reserve by the local people, while the
